PP/PS Debrief

Plusses

- Looking at Goals and connecting them to distance learning
- revisiting and adjusting as distance learning changes
- Linked a Google Doc titled intention and reflection asking “what was your intention? and “how did it go?”
- so nice to see everyone!!
- teachers asking students: How are you feeling? How is your family? What is working? What do you need from me today?
- finding videos of teachers online, more time to discuss practice

Deltas

- Are we giving the kids too much work?
- Work is really overwhelming for family and childrend. How are other mentors navigating this?
- Teachers who have children and comparing themselves to other teachers.

Dear Mentors,
Melissa, Candace, Jamie, and I are in awe of the care and compassion you have for your teachers, their families, and their students. You are all AMAZING!
Please continue to give that care to yourselves and your families. You are precious to them and to us!

Next Steps

- Making a weekly log and reflect routine and see if students are accessing learning and if they aren't, adjust.
- Roisin will send picture of schedule. She printed created a binder with a checklist so that her daughter can do some of the work offline.
- Ingrid will share, wuote from Maria Baeza, “Don't worry about at the end of all of this your kids mental health is more important.”
Shift our focus to mental health of teachers

Don't worry about them regressing in school. Every single kid is in this boat and they all will be ok. When we are back in the classroom, we will all course correct and meet them where they are. Teachers are experts at this! Don't pick fights with your kids because they don't want to do math. Don't scream at your kids for not following the schedule. Don't mandate 2 hours of learning time if they are resisting it.

If I can leave you with one thing, it's this: at the end of all of this, your kids' mental health will be more important than their academic skills. And how they felt during this time will stay with them long after the memory of what they did during those 4 or more weeks is long gone. So keep that in mind, every single day.
